

Quality Policy Statement

The success of the Barnfield group of companies is based on ensuring client satisfaction and operates an accredited ISO 9001 Quality Management System. Construction is, by its nature, a bespoke production process for each project and the quality of the completed product can be positively or adversely affected from the earliest design information provided by clients.

Aims

The Barnfield group of companies aims to provide defect free products to its clients, on time and within budget. By ensuring clients' expectations are met or exceeded, we aim to generate repeat business from our client base. We work with designs provided to us, assisting the client where we can by identifying opportunities to realise improvements. Feedback is sought from all clients to help us continually improve the systems derived from this quality policy.

We aim to accurately assess and allocate the resources needed for effective quality management, integrating quality management into the organisation's business processes, audited internally and externally as required to ensure continuous improvement.

We aim to provide engagement, direction and support to all those who implement the quality management system so that they maintain focus on optimising outcomes.
